

GREAT CARNIVALS OF SPORTS LISTED FOR COMING WEEK

Flanagan and McGrath to Decide Who Is Best at the Hammer.

FINE VOLUNTEER BILL

Hibernians and Eccentric Firemen Also to Have Great Contests.

Several big athletic events are slated for the coming week in and around New York. The senior metropolitan championships are to be decided at Travers Island on Saturday, Aug. 18. A series of games are scheduled by the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Eccentric Firemen's Association, Irish Volunteers, Kings County Association and Brooklyn Post-Office clubs.

The Volunteers will hold their games, parties and dress parades at Coney Island on Sunday. Gaelic football will figure in two contests on their programme, between the Manhattan and New Jersey, Brooklyn and Westchester members of the Volunteers. There will be several other athletic events, among them a medal-of-honor race, which is one of the most picturesque features of the athletic programme of to-day. As soon as the games and contests are disposed of there will be a dress review by Lieut.-Col. Chanler, and afterward supper and dancing. Extra cards will be run throughout the afternoon and evening from Long Island City to the park.

Games at Ulmer Park.

The Kings County men will hold a set of games in Ulmer Park, Brooklyn. In the series of championship games of Gaelic football Queens will kick against South. In the Ulster championship Manhattan will meet Armagh. The Kings County hurling team will meet the Tipperarys in a challenge match for a trophy. Special car service will be established from the New York side of the Brooklyn Bridge to carry visitors direct to the grounds.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians has planned for Sunday, Sept. 1, the most elaborate programme so far arranged for this season for Coney Park. All the standard open events are carried as well as six closed features. The inter-city Gaelic championship will be fought out between the Shamrocks of New Jersey and the Volunteers of New York, and the Hibernians and the Volunteers of Brooklyn. There will be exhibition tennis, rowing and big competitions and prize boxing. A silver cup will be given as a point trophy. The prizes will be diamond studded medals. The entries are being received by John J. McHugh and James J. Clait.

Fine Bill of the Firemen.

The Eccentric Firemen, who usually have the Sunday before Labor Day, have limited the date this year and will present a fine bill at Coney Park on Sunday, Aug. 18. They will have 100, 200, 300 yard and mile run handspins; 300 yard novice, obstacle race, discus and hammer, all open. Special events will be a short mile run and the pole vault for distance. There will be 100 and 200 yard runs for members as well as boys and girls races. The first segment of the Irish Volunteers of Manhattan will meet the Shamrocks of Brooklyn in a match at Gaelic football. There will be a push ball tournament between the Eccentric Firemen, the paper handlers, Eccentric Firemen No. 16 of New York, Local No. 55 of New York, N. J. New York Edison employees and municipal ferry employees.

Of course the interest in this meet will center in the 16-pound hammer event. John Flanagan and Matt McGrath are entered, and when they are through the question of who is champion at throwing the ball of lead will be known. McGrath, who was a pupil of Flanagan, but is now his most dangerous opponent, has twice recently beaten the record of the mighty John. But both throws were barred by the A. A. U. on account of failure to comply with technical details that had nothing whatever to do with the exploit itself. Flanagan has not been pushed.

Brooklyn Girl Who Saved Man and His Two Children

Miss Frances Lloyd
Rowed Alone to Rescue and Plunged Into Water for Little Ones.

Miss Frances Lloyd, a comely young woman, whose city home is at No. 129 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, will come to her friends with more to show for her vacation than a coat of tan. She will probably wear a medal for heroism as the result of her risky rescue of a man and two children yesterday from Onset Bay, Massachusetts.

While she was rowing alone on the bay she described a catboat well out on the heads that seemed to be laboring under difficulties. As she watched, it capsize. No champion sculler ever made better use of a pair of oars.

A half mile was blowing, and the cat had to fight against a rough cruise of waves before she got to the overturned boat. Henry Winslow, of Boston, owner of the boat, was foundering in the water attempting to hold on to the capsize craft with one hand and at his specialty for such a long period that he has hardly tried to cut loose, but he has told his friends that the record on the books does not represent his best. The struggle between the two good natured giants will be awaited with intense interest by all who admire skill and brawn.

There will be a point trophy for the most successful athletic club. The prize for the first various contests will be diamond studded medals. Entries are being received by John J. McHugh and James J. Clait.

DAVID M. EVANS DEAD.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 1.—David M. Evans, President of the Maryland Telephone Company, died here to-day of peritonitis. He was born in Wales fifty-seven years ago. Mr. Evans was prominent as a consulting electrical engineer and as a builder of railroads. While a young man in Wales he won the praise of Queen Victoria for his heroic rescue of a party of miners out of a low ground by a rush of water.

STOLEN HORSES CHANGED COLOR AND VANISHED

Beisonwick's Arrest Solves
Mystery of Brooklyn's
Disappearing Steeds.

In Julius Beisonwick, twenty-six years old, who says he lives in Park avenue, Brooklyn, who is held in the Flushing police station charged with horse stealing, the police say they have an expert horse thief, who has mastered the art of dying stolen property until he can make a beautiful sorrel, bay or black out of a flea-bitten roan.

On Friday last Frank Accordi, of No. 750 Flushing avenue, left his old white horse and wagon standing on the street. Beisonwick happened along and took the theft. The police were notified of the theft and began a search for the old horse, but without result.

Later, on Saturday, at No. 607 Woodward avenue, Ridgewood, purchased a handsome sorrel horse for $150 yesterday and took him home.

"I'll groom him up," Stern told his wife, and he began with soap and water. What was his astonishment when the sorrel began to fade and there stood before Stern a white horse. Stern told the police and Accordi's animal was recognized.

Beisonwick was arrested and the police gathered that he was wanted for at least eight horse thefts. Every horse he was accused of stealing had completely disappeared but now that his dye secret has been discovered it is likely that some of the horses will be recovered.

When Beisonwick was arraigned in court last evening eight detectives from as many different precincts were there to claim him. He was turned over to a policeman from the Sixty-third precinct, Brooklyn.

Beisonwick seemed to have followed in the wake of Accordi's last theft. Hardly had he made off with Accordi's horse when the man's daughter was run down in the street and killed by a wagon. While the police proceedings were in progress last evening Beisonwick received word that his wife had just died of heart disease.
